Eduardo Garduño	garduno@deforest.mx Suggested ranking: Band 5 candidate Eduardo Garduño leads DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. He has led employer-side mandates involving post-acquisition workforce integration, collective bargaining, labour litigation portfolios and workforce governance for industrial and consumer-facing operations in Mexico. His work includes leading the labour integration of a workforce exceeding 5,000 employees across six Mexican states following an acquisition, harmonising employment agreements, collective bargaining agreements, internal regulations, mixed commissions and governance policies while active proceedings continued in parallel. He also leads collective labour and workforce-transformation mandates for manufacturing employers, including negotiations conducted against an imminent strike risk, multi-site collective bargaining work, and integrated employment-governance engagements combining active proceedings with advice on workplace rules, disciplinary procedures and employment documentation. His practice combines collective labour strategy, contentious employment work and preventive governance for complex operations.	Y
Javier Atzin Vallejo	Suggested ranking: Band 5 candidate Javier Atzin Vallejo is a partner in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. He leads employer-side collective labour, workforce-governance and contentious employment mandates for industrial and infrastructure operations in Mexico. His work includes designing negotiation and litigation strategy in a collective bargaining agreement ownership dispute, where the team prevented work stoppages and avoided escalation under the USMCA Rapid Response Labor Mechanism. He also leads labour-governance work for energy infrastructure projects, including workforce documentation, project-specific employment structures, compliance programmes, dispute prevention and workforce demobilisation. In contentious matters, he has led constitutional amparo proceedings that restored an employer's right to present its defence and has combined constitutional litigation, procedural strategy and settlement negotiations to reduce a principal wrongful-termination claim materially. His practice brings together collective labour strategy, labour litigation and operational workforce governance.	Y
Jaime Bustamante	Suggested ranking: Band 5 candidate Jaime Bustamante is a partner in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. He is named as lead partner on mandates involving workforce governance, employment litigation, labour compliance and sensitive employment-risk management. His work includes labour litigation portfolios, audits, internal-control enhancements, employment-procedure harmonisation and preventive compliance measures, including matters in which labour and social-security inspections concluded without fines. He is also named as lead partner on sensitive workplace investigations involving senior personnel. His experience includes employment-governance platforms, compliance	Y due diligence, employment documentation and constitutional and settlement strategies in complex employment disputes.

José Alberto Díaz Méndez	Suggested ranking: Associate to Watch candidate José Alberto Díaz Méndez is an associate in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice, with experience in labour, social-security and administrative matters. He is identified as lead lawyer on mandates involving Mexico's specialised-services regime, employer substitution processes and multi-company workforce restructurings. His work includes a REPSE-focused review of corporate structure, specialised-services arrangements, bylaws and registration, together with an audit of more than 80 suppliers. He has also worked on an employer substitution affecting a workforce of more than 1,200 employees and on a restructuring involving approximately eight companies, including specialised-services implementation, workforce transition and social-security litigation. He contributes to wider industrial employment-governance mandates involving active labour proceedings, employment documentation and compliance.	N
Erick Pérez	Erick Pérez is an associate in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. He supports employer-side mandates involving employment litigation, workforce governance and collective labour matters. He is part of teams advising major employers on active labour proceedings, employment documentation, preventive governance and union-representation disputes in industrial operations.	N
Andrés Cabrera	Andrés Cabrera is an associate in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. His practice includes contentious labour work for domestic and multinational employers, with experience in individual and collective employment proceedings.	N
Raymundo Carreño	Raymundo Carreño is an associate in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. His experience includes employer-side employment litigation, terminations and judicial conciliation hearings across Mexican jurisdictions. He also brings prior in-house legal experience from a major industrial employer, informing his understanding of complex workforce and operational issues.	N
Edgar Barreto	Edgar Barreto is an associate in DeForest's Labour & Employment practice. His work includes labour litigation, employer-side employment advice and social-security matters, including IMSS-related issues.	N

B10 What is this department best known for? Please include: industry sector expertise; key types of work; areas of recent growth. Address any feedback on our recent coverage of your department (500 word count limit)

DeForest's Labour & Employment practice advises employers on workforce stability, collective labour relations, employment litigation, labour and social-security compliance, inspections and workforce governance across Mexico. The team combines contentious and non-contentious work for employers operating in labour-intensive and regulated sectors, including manufacturing, automotive, energy, infrastructure, technology, consumer services and financial services.

The practice is particularly active where employment strategy is closely connected to operational continuity. Its work includes post-acquisition labour integration, collective bargaining and union-representation disputes, prevention of work stoppages, nationwide labour litigation portfolios, workforce restructurings, employer substitutions, specialised-services compliance, internal investigations, employment documentation and social-security matters.

The team has advised on the harmonisation of labour structures for a workforce exceeding 5,000 employees across six Mexican states following an acquisition; collective labour disputes involving union representation and strike risk; nationwide litigation platforms comprising approximately 200 active proceedings; and employment-governance projects for industrial workforces of up to approximately 17,000 employees. Across its employer client base, the practice advises employers whose combined workforce exceeds one million employees throughout Mexico. Its Puebla team manages approximately 700 labour disputes, and during the last twelve months the team has assisted more than 20 clients in connection with labour inspections conducted by the Ministry of Labor.

It also advises on labour-reform implementation, REPSE-related reviews and supplier audits, labour and social-security inspections, and constitutional labour litigation. Eduardo Garduño leads the practice, with Javier Atzin Vallejo, Jaime Bustamante, José Alberto Díaz Méndez and other members of the team contributing across collective labour, workforce governance, litigation, compliance and social-security mandates. The practice is positioned to support employers throughout the employment lifecycle, from preventive governance and documentation to high-risk collective disputes and complex contentious matters.

C1 If you have used barristers / advocates in the UK, Australia, Hong Kong, India, Malaysia, New Zealand or Sri Lanka please provide the information below (Optional)

C2 Feedback on our coverage of this practice area (Optional)

DeForest requests consideration for coverage in Labour & Employment in Mexico. The practice presents an employer-side offering that combines collective labour strategy, workforce integration, labour litigation, employment governance and labour and social-security compliance.

Representative work includes a post-acquisition labour integration affecting more than 5,000 employees across six states; collective labour mandates in which the team prevented work stoppages and addressed union-representation disputes; nationwide labour litigation management involving approximately 200 active proceedings; and workforce restructurings involving employer substitution, specialised-services structures and multi-company transitions. The team also handles inspections, internal employment investigations, constitutional labour litigation and preventive governance for industrial, infrastructure, consumer-facing and regulated businesses.

The practice’s leadership is demonstrated through named partners leading these mandates, while associates contribute to complex restructuring, REPSE and litigation work. This combination of collective labour capability, contentious experience and practical workforce-governance work supports appropriate Chambers coverage for the Mexico Labour & Employment market.

DeForest advises an infrastructure contractor on labour governance for major energy-infrastructure mandates, including pipeline expansions, gas-pipeline work and operational support for energy projects in Tabasco. The mandate includes the Energía Mayakan Pipeline Expansion, valued at more than USD 2,000,000,000, and the Mayakan system expansion (Cuxtal II), valued at USD 2,500,000,000; these project values are distinct from the labour litigation value of approximately USD 252,000. The team designed and implemented workforce documentation, project-specific employment structures, compliance programmes, dispute-prevention measures and workforce-demobilisation arrangements. Alongside this preventive work, the team managed more than 20 labour disputes arising during project execution, resolving the overwhelming majority through conciliation and reducing potential financial exposure by approximately 80%. It also prevented an imminent strike that threatened to halt operations connected with strategic energy infrastructure. Javier Atzin Vallejo leads the mandate.

E2 Summary of matter and your department's role – Please say why this matter was important. Also, tell us exactly what role your department played.
DeForest managed a sensitive internal employment investigation involving allegations against a senior executive at a media organisation. The team designed and supervised the investigation, coordinating evidence-gathering, legal analysis and strategic decision-making while maintaining compliance with applicable employment standards. The structured process prevented litigation valued at approximately MXN 750,000 and protected the client's reputation during a sensitive period. Jaime Bustamante leads the mandate.
