Eduardo Garduño	garduno@deforest.mx Suggested ranking: Partner — individual recognition Eduardo Garduño leads complex employer-side labour mandates for industrial and consumer-facing businesses in Mexico. He has led post-acquisition labour integration for a large workforce across multiple sites, including the harmonisation of employment arrangements, collective-labour documentation and workforce-governance frameworks. He also leads an ongoing integrated employment mandate involving active labour proceedings, alongside advice on employment documentation, disciplinary procedures and workplace governance. His collective-labour work includes leading bargaining negotiations in an automotive supply-chain matter facing an imminent strike risk, as well as strategic responses to union-representativeness disputes. Garduño also co-leads a nationwide labour litigation platform and supports employers with geographically dispersed workforces through coordinated collective bargaining and union-negotiation strategies.	Y
Jaime Bustamante	bustamante@deforest.mx Suggested ranking: Partner — individual recognition Jaime Bustamante advises employers on complex labour disputes, preventive compliance and sensitive workplace matters. He leads a mandate involving legacy employment litigation, negotiations relating to adverse labour judgments and a constitutional amparo challenging the reasoning of a labour decision. He also leads labour litigation management, audits and governance work for a regulated business, including inspection-related compliance. His work further includes internal employment investigations involving senior-management allegations, evidence gathering, legal analysis and strategic decision-making. Bustamante combines contentious employment work with compliance reviews, workforce-governance measures and commercial negotiation for employers operating in regulated environments.	Y
Javier Atzin Vallejo	vallejo@deforest.mx Suggested ranking: Partner — individual recognition Javier Atzin Vallejo leads labour, social-security and employment-governance mandates for infrastructure and industrial employers. He leads the labour strategy for major energy-infrastructure projects, designing project-specific employment structures, compliance programmes, dispute-prevention measures and workforce-demobilisation arrangements. In that mandate, the firm managed labour disputes, used conciliation to address claims and helped prevent an imminent strike. He also leads workforce structuring and constitutional labour litigation connected with major infrastructure projects, including a successful challenge to an adverse labour judgment that restored the client's procedural rights and reopened the litigation. His collective-labour work includes a union-representation dispute in which the	Y firm's negotiation and litigation strategy prevented work stoppages.

Raymundo Carreño	carreno@deforest.mx Raymundo Carreño brings nearly four decades of corporate labour-relations experience, including service as General Legal Director of a company. His career includes major regulatory transitions, union negotiations and organisational restructurings in the automotive sector, with a focus on matters where labour-law interpretation intersects with operational continuity and corporate strategy.	Y
Edgar Barreto	dirgeneral@mrb.mx Edgar Barreto focuses on labour litigation, social security and internal governance for large-scale employers. His practice includes the early identification of labour contingencies, harmonisation of employment documentation in high-volume settings and advice for industrial operations requiring predictable labour processes. He also has experience with IMSS procedures and inspection frameworks.
Andrés Cabrera Gómez	cabrera@deforest.mx Andrés Cabrera Gómez leads the firm's Labour & Employment practice in the Bajío region. His work focuses on the implementation of litigation strategies in industrial jurisdictions adapting to Mexico's post-reform labour system, connecting firm-wide labour frameworks with local operational requirements.	Y
Erick Pérez	perezg@deforest.mx Erick Pérez is a member of teams supporting employer-side labour matters involving nationwide litigation portfolios, union-representativeness disputes and employment-governance work for organisations with distributed workforces. He is identified in matters led by the firm's Labour & Employment partners alongside broader litigation and collective-labour teams.

B10 What is this department best known for? Please include: industry sector expertise; key types of work; areas of recent growth. Address any feedback on our recent coverage of your department (500 word count limit)

DeForest Abogados advises employers on Labour & Employment matters where workforce stability, regulatory compliance and operational continuity are closely connected. The practice combines employment advisory, labour litigation, collective labour relations, social security, compliance and workforce governance for domestic and multinational businesses operating throughout Mexico.

The team advises across the employment lifecycle, including hiring, day-to-day advisory, collective bargaining, restructurings, labour inspections, social-security matters, constitutional labour litigation and workforce integration following corporate transactions. Its work includes collective-bargaining negotiations and union-representation disputes, nationwide litigation portfolios, post-acquisition employment integration, specialised-services and REPSE projects, and labour governance for infrastructure and industrial operations. During the last twelve months, the team assisted more than 20 clients in connection with Ministry of Labor inspections and handled numerous labour and social-security compliance audits. The practice advises employers whose combined workforce exceeds one million employees throughout Mexico and includes approximately 700 labour disputes managed by the firm's Puebla team.

Key partners include Eduardo Garduño, Jaime Bustamante, Javier Atzin Vallejo and Raymundo Carreño. Garduño leads employment integration, collective-labour and workforce-governance mandates for industrial employers. Bustamante combines complex employment disputes, workplace investigations, compliance and preventive governance. Vallejo leads labour and social-security work for infrastructure and manufacturing operations, including collective-labour disputes and constitutional proceedings. Carreño contributes longstanding corporate labour-relations experience developed in the automotive sector.

The wider leadership group includes Andrés Cabrera Gómez in the Bajío region, together with lawyers focused on litigation, social security, labour compliance and workforce implementation. The practice advises employers across labour-intensive and regulated industries, including manufacturing, automotive, infrastructure, energy, logistics, technology, telecommunications, retail and financial services.

DeForest Abogados seeks recognition in Mexico Labour & Employment for an employer-side practice that combines collective labour strategy, litigation, workforce restructuring, social-security work and preventive governance.

The team's recent work includes labour strategy for major projects, where it designed project workforce structures, managed related labour disputes, used conciliation to address claims and helped preserve operational continuity. It has also led post-acquisition employment integration for a large workforce across multiple locations; coordinated nationwide labour litigation platforms; managed significant industrial-employer proceedings; and handled union-representation disputes, collective bargaining and employment-governance implementation for manufacturing businesses.

Key partners include Eduardo Garduño, Jaime Bustamante, Javier Atzin Vallejo and Raymundo Carreño, supported by a broader team with experience in litigation, social security, labour compliance and regional implementation. We respectfully request coverage reflecting this demonstrated capability in complex employer-side Labour & Employment work in Mexico.

E2 Summary of matter and your department's role – Please say why this matter was important. Also, tell us exactly what role your department played.
Bonatti SpA and Bonatti México have retained DeForest on an ongoing basis to support the labour-governance strategy for major Mexican energy-infrastructure projects, including the Energía Mayakan Pipeline Expansion, the Cuxtal II expansion, the Ojinaga-El Encino Gas Pipeline and operational support for ENI México projects in Tabasco. The record identifies labour-litigation value of approximately USD 252,000; separately, the Energía Mayakan Pipeline Expansion is valued at more than USD 2 billion and the Cuxtal II expansion at USD 2.5 billion. Led by Javier Atzin Vallejo, with Yrelia Barrón, DeForest designed and implemented the employment architecture for the projects, including workforce documentation, project-specific employment structures, compliance programmes, dispute-prevention measures and workforce demobilisation. The team managed more than 20 labour disputes arising during project execution, resolved the overwhelming majority through conciliation, reduced potential financial exposure by approximately 80% and prevented an imminent strike that threatened linked operations.

E2 Summary of matter and your department's role – Please say why this matter was important. Also, tell us exactly what role your department played.
Mextypsa, S.A. de C.V. retains DeForest on an ongoing basis for labour-governance, workforce-structuring and litigation work connected with major infrastructure projects. The declared matter value is USD 1,144,523.00. The mandate includes the Guadalajara Metro Line 4 Project, a USD 552 million development, and litigation arising from the Coahuila Wind Farm Project, where an adverse labour judgment threatened liabilities exceeding MXN 5.5 million. DeForest also manages more than 20 labour disputes representing aggregate exposure of approximately MXN 21.5 million. Led by Javier Atzin Vallejo, with Yrelia Barron and Roberto López Hernández, the team designed the contractual and compliance architecture for the Guadalajara Metro project, supervised workforce demobilisation and successfully challenged the adverse labour judgment through constitutional proceedings. The resulting relief restored the client's procedural rights and reopened the litigation.

Poliuretanos Summa Woodbridge (PSW)
E2 Summary of matter and your department's role – Please say why this matter was important. Also, tell us exactly what role your department played.
Poliuretanos Summa Woodbridge (PSW) retained DeForest to design and implement a restructuring affecting approximately eight companies operating in multiple Mexican states. The project required separation of business functions, redesign of the group's employment model and establishment of a specialised-services platform under Mexico's post-outsourcing framework. José Alberto Díaz Méndez leads the mandate. DeForest developed the legal strategy for the restructuring, including the creation of a specialised-services entity, employer-substitution processes, redesigned corporate purposes and a workforce transition across the operating companies. The firm also represents the client in social-security litigation before the Federal Court of Administrative Justice challenging tax assessments relating to two manufacturing facilities.

Art Human retains DeForest on an ongoing basis as external labour counsel for employment litigation, audits, internal controls and preventive governance. The declared matter value is USD 104,000,000.45; this is distinct from the combined potential exposure approaching MXN 2 million associated with three inspections. Jaime Bustamante leads the mandate. DeForest manages the labour litigation portfolio, conducts audits, harmonises employment procedures and implements preventive governance measures. Three separate inspections by the Ministry of Labor and IMSS concluded without fines despite their combined potential exposure.
